A conflict of interest exists when someone can derive personal benefit from actions or decisions made whilst performing their professional duties. This includes being a member of an Advisory Committee.

6.7.1 General Conflict of Interest

A person has a general conflict of interest in a matter if an impartial, fair-minded person would consider that the person's private interest could result in that person acting in a matter that is contrary to their public duty or role.

6.7.2 Private Interest

Private Interest means any direct or indirect interest of a relevant person that does not derive from their public duty and does not include an interest that is only a matter of personal opinion or belief.

A private interest may relate to the relevant person themselves, such as:

- A financial gain or loss to the person, either directly or indirectly.
- An impact on their reputation or responsibilities, such as an award or promotion.

- A change to their personal circumstances, such as a change to their residential amenity.

A private interest may be indirect, relating to an impact on a person associated with the relevant person, such as:

- A matter affecting the interests of a relative, friend or work colleague.
- A cost or benefit to an organisation that financially supported a councillor's election campaign, or
- A cost or benefit for an Advisory Committee member's immediate or past employer.

A benefit or loss does not have to be pecuniary. A pecuniary benefit or loss is one that can be measured in money.
